

Art Camp 2009

Thirty young students attended the Danville Art League's first-ever summer art camp. The camp ran from July 13-17 with drawing activities inside the Art League studio and "wet and wild" projects under tents outside.

The students painted, decorated tote bags, made prints, assembled photo books, created masks, and worked with clay and plaster molds to make Indian dolls, turtles and pinch pots.

Carol Garver was camp director. Becky Engel, Marsha Russell, Roberta Williams and Paul Groth served as teaching assistants.

Decorating tote bags

Painting

Printing

Gluing

Making a photo book

See what I made

